SEYMOUR, INDIANA, SATURDAY, AUGUST 2, 1919.

ROAD EQUIPMENT ARRIVES IN CITY

Davis Construction Company and Lawrence Jenkins to Begin
Local Contracts Soon.

AWARDS MADE FOR FIVE MILES

High Street Road Will be Improved
Under Supervision of State Highway Commission.

Three car loads of road construction equipment belonging to the Davis Construction Company, of Arcadia, which has the contract for the improvement of the Seymour-Dudleytown road, arrived here this morning. The equipment will be unloaded the first of next week and it is understood that the work on the road is to begin immediately. One carload of equipment belonging to Lawrence Jenkins, of Frankfort, who was awarded the contract for the improvement of the High street road, arrived Friday and will be delivered to the place of construction Tuesday. The Jenkins contract was awarded by the Indiana state highway commission, while the commissioners of Jackson county let the contract for the Seymour-Dudleytown road.

W. R. Hines, Edward L. Kellar and Mr. Jenkins, of the Jenkins Construction Company, were in the city the first of this week and made preliminary arrangements for beginning the work next week. They returned to Frankfort during the week, but stated that they would be in Seymour again Tuesday. They will at once supervise the unloading the equipment upon their return here.

Both roads are to be improved with concrete. The High street road to be eighteen feet wide, while the Seymour-Dudleytown road will be sixteen feet wide. The former road will be one of the first of the main market highways designated by the state highway commission to be built.

Whether or not the High street road will be completed this fall depends upon the weather conditions and the progress that is made with the preliminary work. However, it is understood that the construction company has been instructed to push the work as rapidly as possible with the view of having the highway completed and open to traffic before winter weather sets in. The road is to be improved for a distance of 2.46 miles beginning at the east corporation line of the city and extending just beyond the O. E. Carter farm, east of here. It will form a section of the Indianapolis-Louisville and Cincinnati-Evansville main market highways.

The bids for the construction of six and a half miles of improvement on the Seymour-Jonesville road will be opened by the state commission Monday. A number of contractors are intending to file bids, it is understood, and the award will likely be made before the commission adjourns Monday. This work is also to be finished this fall, it is stated.

The Davis Construction Company will improve as much of the Dudleytown road as possible with the funds that are already available. In order to secure the balance of the contract price, a petition will have to be filed with the state tax board, asking permission to issue certificates of indebtedness until the suit of the Boone Construction Company, which was given the original contract, is settled. If the company is not held liable on its bond for the additional cost, application will be made for the issuance of bonds.

RECOUNT ASKED IN COURT HOUSE CASE

Another Long Period of Litigation
Promised in The Vernon—
North Vernon Fight.

THREE ACTIONS ARE PENDING

Hearing on Injunction Against County Auditor Set For Hearing
Next Tuesday.

Judge John M. Lewis is home from Vernon where he has been retained as counsel to represent the anti-removalists in Jennings county court house fight. He will return the first of the week and prepare for a hearing set for Tuesday on the injunction filed by the Vernon people to restrain the auditor of Jennings county from proclaiming the removal of the court house to North Vernon as shown on the face of the returns in the special election recently held in that county.

Another turn was taken in the case Friday when the Vernon people filed application for a recount of the votes cast in the special election. The law under which the election was conducted does not provide for a recount of the ballots and legal contention is expected to develop from the petition.

The petition for the recount is the third action which has been filed by the Vernon people since the special election. The first was an injunction against the auditor. The election was also contested in another case filed about the same time. The two actions, it is stated, were made necessary inasmuch as the special election law for court house removals does not provide for a contest or a recount. Should the supreme court hold that the Vernon people cannot contest the election, they still may rely upon the injunction to block the removal until the case is finally determined.

The forces at North Vernon, it is understood, are preparing to resist any legal move made by the Vernon people. A long period of litigation is now foreseen as a result of the election and both sides are determined to fight as long as possible. It is said that there is no lack of funds on either side as the Vernon and North Vernon people are both

NO LIQUOR CASES IN CITY COURT DURING JULY

First Time in Years That Records
Failed to Show Where Arrests
Had Been Made.

For the first time in many years, the records of the city court have failed to show a case for which liquor was directly responsible. During the month of July there was not an arrest made on the intoxication charge or for otherwise violating the liquor laws.

Mayor C. W. Burkart stated this morning that it was the first time during his administration that a month had passed without some case, for which liquor was responsible, being filed in the city court. With the exception of one or two cases where persons were fined for violating the speed laws, there was little business in city court during the month just ended.

He will deliver a sermon at the morning hour and at night will speak on "The Challenge of the Twentieth Century."

This is the third consecutive year that Mr. Whitman has addressed the closing session of the Richmond Assembly. The chautauqua there is held in a beautiful park especially arranged for the assembly. The attendance at each session is large.

TIP TOP SHIPMENT IS MADE FROM HERE

C. G. Borchering, Extensive Local Grower, Furnishes Canteloupes for Two Cars.

SOLD THROUGH C. H. HAZZARD

Shipments from the Vallonia Melon
Growers' Association Will Start Eastward Soon.

The first big shipment of Tip Top canteloupes from this city this year was made today by G. C. Borchering, one of the most extensive melon growers in the county. Mr. Borchering tends many acres at his farm just west of the city, and each year sends out a number of carloads of choice melons which bring a high price in the market centers. He has specialized on Tip Top melons and the variety he grows is exceptionally fine.

Mr. Borchering sold the melons this year to Charles Hazzard who finds the market for them. Two carloads were shipped today and the melons will ripen rapidly from this time so that other shipments can be made regularly.

The Vallonia Melon Growers' Association have been making basket shipments from Vallonia for several days, but the melons are now received in such number that larger shipments can be made. The association sends its melons to eastern points and also trucks a large number to Indianapolis and Louisville. The melon industry has expanded greatly in Jackson county during the last few years and several hundred acres of land adapted to their cultivation are producing canteloupes of fine quality and flavor.

Jackson county watermelon shipments will be started in the next few days. They are just a little later

BAND OF GYPSIES TRAVEL IN FORD AUTOMOBILES

One Car Load Ordered Out of The City By Police When They Appeared Here Today.

Being a gypsy is evidently a prosperous business these days considering the fact the oldtime custom of travel in wagons drawn by "plug" horses has been discarded for automobiles. The first gypsies to visit Seymour for several years made their appearance this morning but their visit was cut short by the police who ushered them to the outskirts of the city and warned them not to return.

The gypsies were traveling in a Ford automobile truck. According to the story told the police they belonged to a band that owned several automobiles and that they got lost from them Friday after, they had passed through North Vernon since which time they have been unable to locate their band. They told the officers that they were enroute to Louisville.

Field Thrown Open By Withdraw
Yesterday of Republican
Chairman Hays.

By United Press
Indianapolis, August 2—That Warren T. McCray, of Kentland, Stockman, and Ed Toner, publisher of the Anderson Herald, will come out for the republican nomination for the governorship of Indiana, was regarded as a certainty today.

In the light of a refusal of the nomination yesterday by Will H. Hays, republican national chairman, the field was thrown open and the hats of at least two and probably three aspirants were expected to grace the well known ring.

Edgar Bush, lieutenant-governor, has already announced his candidacy for the nomination. Bush, it is rumored, will make his campaign by opposing the new tax law and several other reforms which have been made by the Goodrich administration.

It is stated that several other republicans who have been considering the race for the nomination have kept quiet until Chairman Hays made known his decision. With Hays out of the race the field is thrown wide open.

COST OF LIVING PROBLEM IS ISSUE

Attention of Entire Nation is Centered on Means To Find a Solution.

EVERY DEPARTMENT ACTIVE

Demand Made That Packers Put Food Supplies Now in Storage on the Market.

By United Press
Washington, August 2—With the cost of living problem holding the interest of the nation almost exclusively today, both congress and the executive arm of the government were seeking a solution.

The developments were: Heads of three of the great railway brotherhoods condemned the plan of putting up to congress their demand for increased wages or reduction in the cost of living. All declared the delay entailed by this plan might mean a strike.

Attorney-General Palmer and a committee of high government officials were drawing up a program which probably will form the basis for recommendation which the president has promised within a fortnight.

Attention of the senate has been switched from the treaty and the house which planned a recess will stay in session while leaders are working out plans of adjustment of wages in relations to living costs.

Miss Jessie Haver, legislative agent of the national consumers' league, demanded that the packers release food in storage.

George Hampton, director of the farmers' national council, advocated passage of the Kenyon bill to regulate the packers.

Meanwhile demands of the railroad employees which hold the prospect of a possible rate increase again stimulated talk of government ownership of railroad which congressional leaders believed a dead issue.

The senate today adopted the Meyers resolution ordering the banking and currency committee to investigate the feasibility of reducing the currency to decrease the cost of living.

Cummings announced that he will call his committee together Tuesday to begin consideration of the president's proposal for a special commission to study the wage question.

The senate today concurred with the house in rescinding its recent decision for a recess.

UNION HEADS ARE OPPOSED TO PLAN

Railway Brotherhood Presidents
Condemn Creation of a Special Commission.

SUGGESTION BY WILSON

Lee, Shephard and Shea Issue Statement
Declaring That Method is Not Satisfactory.

By United Press
Washington, August 2—Heads of the three of the four big railroad unions condemned the placing in the hands of congress the demands of their members for immediate wage increases, proportionate to increased living costs.

The union heads were, W. G. Lee, president of the Brotherhood of Railway trainmen, L. E. Shephard, President of the Brotherhood of Railway Conductors, and Timothy Shea, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers.

Organized railway workers will refuse to be controlled, officials said, if they become convinced their demands must be passed upon by a commission which must first be created by special legislation in congress. That the railroad administration has no money to grant immediate increases was made clear by President Wilson in letters to house and senate committees in which he proposed creation of a commission to survey the wages of all rail workers and decide upon increases which would be mandatory upon the interstate commerce commission for increased freight and passenger rates.

"Putting the demands up to congress would mean a delay of six months and perhaps a year," said Shephard, who has asked an average 35 per cent. increase for 52,000 conductors. "This would be unsatisfactory to the men who have been waiting months. They are now in no mood to wait longer although we all feel that both President Wilson and Rail Director Hines want to help the men."

"We will not be able to control the men if this is the answer to our demands," said President Lee. "For years we've been forced to give them this brand of medicine which resulted in delay. They're immune to it now. I would not recommend such a solution to them."

"I have every confidence in President Wilson and Director Hines," said President Shea, "but if this means they have turned over to con-

GOVERNMENT OWNERSHIP OF RAILROADS PROVIDED

Representative Sims Offers Bill Which Would Completely Alter System of Operation.

By United Press

Washington, August 2—Organized labor plans for peace time operation of the railroads—complete government ownership—was introduced in congress today with the promise that its adoption will bring lower rates and reduce the cost of living in general.

The plan was submitted in a bill introduced in the house by Representative Sims, Tennessee, ranking democrat on the house interstate and foreign commerce committee and has the approval of all the railroad brotherhoods and American federation of labor.

The bill provides: Purchase by the government of all the railroad systems on valuation to be determined by the courts.

Operation by a directorate of fifteen, five to be chosen by the president to represent the public, five to be elected by the operating officials and five by the classified employees.

Equal division of surplus after paying fixed charges and operating expenses between the public and the employees.

Automatic reduction of rates when the employees share of the surplus is more than five percent of the gross operating revenues.

Regional operation of the lines as a unified system.

THE H. C. L. PROBLEM.

Investigations have been instituted by the congress and authorities in a number of states to ascertain the reasons for the soaring costs of practically all products. The probe has not been started too soon and it is sincerely hoped that a solution can be found. Admittedly, the problem is a big one. Many conditions are to be considered and if reductions are made in one line corresponding cuts must be ordered in all. It is obvious that complications will arise and the investigators realize that their task is by no means easy. During the last two years money has been the cheapest commodity. It became so cheap that the buying value of a dollar was reduced from one-third to three-fourths. Wages, salaries and profits mounted rapidly. As they increased the prices of commodities were advanced. Preliminary investigations that have been conducted reveal that in some lines enormous profits have been declared whereas a few years ago the rate of revenue was much less. This

The first corporation pays little to the government under the income tax law. The successful corporation pays more income taxes. The state board, if its policy is executed, also appraises the profits, which virtually amounts to double taxation for the successfully managed concern. In other words a tax is placed upon the successful management in addition to the property tax. It is readily seen that such a policy is dangerously close to serious complications and grave injustices. The government has deemed it within its province to collect income taxes and so long as the state does not collect them, it is questionable if the policy of the state board would stand legal test.

The same illustration can be carried down to individual ownership of a house or lot. The question is not one that concerns corporations and business enterprises alone. But it affects everyone who pays taxes. The new law is admittedly defective. The farmers admit that improvements could be made and they will be made in due time. But it is strongly contended for the law that it removes many defects which were apparent under the old system. The law is undoubtedly a step towards a much needed reform but the defects ought to be removed as soon as possible that justice, equality and uniformity may be carried out in securing money to defray the expenses of city, township, county and state governments.

Will H. Hays Republican national chairman, has declined to become a candidate for the nomination for governor. He will stay at his present post and confidently predicts a sweeping Republican victory throughout the nation at the next election. Well, judging from the results in Indiana last year when he was state chairman, he ought to know what he is talking about.

Everybody is in favor of the proposed attack on the high cost of living, but want the reductions to be made on the products that the other fellow sells.

When it comes to the guaranteed price of wheat it appears that the government has little to do.

Who Gets the Money?

OUR SUBSCRIBERS ARE ENTITLED TO KNOW WHO GETS THE MONEY RECEIVED FROM THE INCREASED TELEPHONE RATES.

Our books have been closed for the month of July and we know exactly the amount the new rates increase our revenue.

We received from Telephone rent during June 1919 the month before the increased rates went into effect $1622.78.

And during July, 1919 the First Month the new rates were collected $2181.00.

An increase of $457.22 for the month

Who Gets This Money?

We paid for wages the following amounts:

	June 1916	June 1919	Increase	Percent Increase
Operators	$197.00	$ 334.25	$136.75	69%
Plant, Linemen & Telephones	176.83	418.17	241.34	136%
Accounting Department.....	88.25	105.00	26.75	30%
General Officers and Clerks...	239.00	289.00	50.00	21%
Total Wages Paid.....	$701.58	$1146.42	$454.84	64%

New rates increase our revenue.....$457.22 each month
We have increased our employees' wages.....$454.84 each month

In other words our employees get $454.84 of the increased revenue, and the stockholders $2.38 each month.

Our wages have increased only 64 percent. Wages of others have increased 74 percent.

If our employees were to receive increased wages that would compare with the general increase received by others, it would require another increase in telephone rates of 10% to meet this increased expense.

We have nothing left after increasing our employees' wages to pay the increased cost of material, such as poles, wire, batteries and all other material used in the operation of a telephone system, and this material has increased about 200 percent. over five years ago.

MOONEY PROBE PROPOSED FOR LABOR DEPARTMENT

Blanton, of Texas, Wants to Know What Activities, If Any, Are Being Conducted.

By United Press

Washington, Aug. 2—Further information regarding the Department of Labor's activities in the case of Thomas J. Mooney, convicted of complicity in the San Francisco bomb outrage, is asked of Secretary Wilson in a resolution introduced by Representative Branton, Democrat, Texas.

The resolution asks what activities, if any, are being conducted in the case and directs the secretary to send to the House copies of instructions John B. Densmore mentioned in his report as receiving from May 1 to Nov. 1, 1918, when he was in California investigating the Mooney case. The resolution also asks the names of all persons, who under the direction of any branch of the department, had anything to do with the investigation during Densmore's stay in California and a detailed statement of activities of any department employees since Mooney's conviction with the expense accounts of the investigation.

TWO BROTHERS KILLED BY TRAIN NEAR ROACHDALE

George and Frank Pence Meet Death on Monon Railroad Crossing.

Greencastle, Ind., Aug. 2—George Pence, 37 years old, and Frank Pence, 40, brothers, were instantly killed yesterday south of Roachdale when a northbound Monon passenger train hit the buggy in which they were riding. The men had been to Roachdale and were returning home when killed. Both bodies were badly mutilated by the train. George Pence is survived by four small children and Frank Pence is survived by a widow and a son. The crossing is considered a dangerous one by residents of the neighborhood. 1,068,932 DIED IN U.S. IN 1917

Heart Disease, Pneumonia, Tuberculosis, Chief Causes.

INFLUENZA HEADS EPIDEMICS

Census Bureau's Compilation of Mortality Statistics Made Public—Death Rate From Heart Disease Shows Noticeable Decrease as Compared With 1916—Next to Influenza Highest Death Rate From Epidemic Disease Was Diphtheria.

The census bureau's annual compilation of mortality statistics for the death-registration area in continental United States shows 1,068,932 deaths as having occurred in this area in 1917, representing a rate of 14.2 per 1,000 of population.

Of deaths, nearly one-third were due to three causes—heart disease, pneumonia and tuberculosis—and nearly another third resulted from the following nine causes: Bright's disease and nephritis, apoplexy, cancer, diarrhoea and enteritis, arterial diseases, influenza, diabetes, diphtheria and bronchitis. The death-registration area of the United States in 1917 comprised 27 states, the district of Columbia and 47 cities in non-registration states, with a total estimated population of 75,000,000, or about 73 per cent of the estimated population of the United States.

Fewer Die of Heart Disease.

The deaths from heart disease (organic diseases of the heart and endocarditis) numbers 115,337, or 153.2 per 100,000 population. The death rate from this cause shows a noticeable decrease as compared with 1916, when it was 159.4 per 100,000. There have been fluctuations from year to year, but in general there has been a marked increase since 1900, the earliest year for which the annual mortality statistics were published, when the rate for heart disease was only 123.1 per 100,000.

Pneumonia (including broncho-pneumonia) was responsible for 112,881 deaths, or 149.8 per 100,000. This rate, although much lower than that for 1900 (180.5) or for several succeeding years, is higher than that for any year during the period 1908-1916. The lowest recorded rate for pneumonia was 127 per 100,000 in 1914. The mortality from this disease has fluctuated considerably from year to year since 1900, the general tendency having been downward until 1914 and upward from 1914 to 1917.

Tuberculosis in its various forms caused 110,285 deaths, of which 97,047 were due to tuberculosis of the lungs. The death rate from all forms of tuberculosis was 146.4 per 100,000, and from tuberculosis of the lungs 128.9. The rate from tuberculosis of all forms declined continuously from 200.7 per 100,000 in 1904 to 141.6 per 100,000 in 1916, the decrease amounting to nearly 30 per cent; but for 1917 an increase is shown. Until 1912 more deaths were due to tuberculosis than to any other single cause, but in that year and during the period 1914-1917 the mortality from tuberculosis was less than that from heart diseases, and in 1917 it fell below that from pneumonia also.

Cancer Fatalities Greater.

Cancer and other malignant tumors caused 61,452 deaths, of which number 23,413, or 38 per cent, resulted from cancer of the stomach and liver. The rate from cancer has risen from 63 per 100,000 in 1900 to 81.6 in 1917. The increase has not been continuous, there having been three years—1906, 1911 and 1917—which showed declines as compared with the years immediately preceding. The decrease in 1917, as compared with 1916, however, was very slight—from 81.8 to 81.6. It should be borne in mind that at least a part of the increase in the death rate from cancer may be apparent rather than real, being due to a greater degree of accuracy in diagnosis and to greater care on the part of physicians in making reports to registration officials.

Influenza was responsible for 12,974 deaths, or 17.2 per 100,000. This rate is the highest shown for any epidemic disease in 1917, but is much lower than the corresponding one for the preceding year, 26.4 per 100,000. The influenza rate, which fluctuates greatly, was highest in 1901, when it stood at 82.2, than in any subsequent year prior to the occurrence of the recent epidemic.

Next to that for influenza, the highest rate appearing for any epidemic disease in 1917 was for diphtheria, 14.5 per 100,000, representing 12,453 deaths. The rate from this disease was somewhat higher in 1917 than in the preceding year, when it stood at 14.5 per 100,000.

Bronchitis caused 12,311 deaths, or 16.3 per 100,000. This rate is lower than that for any preceding year except 1916, when it was 16.0. The proportional decline from 1900, for which year the bronchitis rate was 45.7, to 1917, amounting to 64 per cent, was greater than that shown for any other important cause of death.

Typhoid Fever resulted in 10,113 deaths, or 13.4 per 100,000. The mortality rate from this cause also has shown a remarkable reduction since 1900, when it was 35.9, the proportional decrease amounting to 63 per cent. This highly gratifying decline demonstrates in a striking manner the efficiency of improved sanitation and of

The greatest number of deaths charged to any one accidental cause—11,114, or 14.8 per 100,000—is shown for falls. The rate for this cause varies but slightly from year to year. Next to falls, the greatest number of accidental deaths—8,649, or 11.5 per 100,000—resulted from railroad accidents and injuries.

The following table shows, for the death-registration area in continental United States in 1917, the total number of deaths and the death rate, by leading causes, together with the percentage which each cause contributed to the total.

Automobile Death Rate Grows.

Deaths from automobile accidents and injuries in 1917 totaled 6,724, or 8.9 per 100,000 population. This rate has risen rapidly from year to year, but not so rapidly as the rate of increase in the number of automobiles in use.

Deaths due to accidental asphyxiation (except in conflagrations) numbered 3,375, or 4.5 per 100,000. This rate is somewhat higher than that for any year during the preceding ten-year period.

Hot weather caused 1,964 deaths, or 2.6 per 100,000. This rate is considerably above those for most of the years covered by the bureau's records, but is somewhat lower than 2.9 in 1916 and is far below 5.3 in 1911. The rate from this cause naturally varies greatly from year to year.

TELLS LOST SHIP WHERE SHE IS

System of Triangulation Will Give Bearings to Bewildered Craft.

ALL U. S. PORTS TO WATCH

Operators at Radio Stations Figure Out Position of Boat by Com-passes—Used in Navy for Years.

New York.—Not the least of the dangers attending the business of being a mariner has been that of losing one's bearings while at sea. Time was when the sailor's life was more replete with danger than in these days of advanced maritime efficiency. But though the ocean terrors were eliminated one by one until there remained little to be afraid of, there still was the disconcerting possibility of a ship losing itself; of fogs and compass irregularities; of mishaps to instruments and disabilities of steering mechanisms. Thus every so often a liner or freighter or a warship was reported "lost in the fog" or "out of its course."

The United States naval communication service has perfected a system of triangulation that has eliminated the possibility of further maritime reports of this sort. It is not the discovery of any one man. Indeed, it truly cannot be classified as a discovery. It is simply a perfection of a basic rule of position finding that has formed the fundamental of range determination in the army and a straightforward geometric theorem concerning intersecting lines.

System Explained.

The perfected system has been in use in the American navy for a year. At 44 Whitehall street the system was explained briefly by attaches of the New York district central controlling radio station.

It is to be assumed that a ship is a hundred miles off the middle Atlantic coast. She has lost her bearings. Her navigators are unable to tell her latitude and longitude. At once the bewildered ship's radio flashes the American coast a demand to be told the data she needs most:

"Where am I?"

The request coming within the sector for which the New York district central controlling radio station is responsible, the appeal is received by five radio compass stations located at Montauk Point, L. I.; Fire Island, Rockaway Beach, Sandy Hook and Mantoloking, N. J.

Each of these stations is connected with 44 Whitehall street by telegraph and telephone. These radio compass stations cannot communicate with the "lost" ship, as they are receivers only and not transmitters. However, each of the radio compass stations notifies the central station in Whitehall street that a ship within the district is demanding to know its location. Immediately the central station radios the bewildered mariner to continue flashing his call letters for at least thirty seconds. And at the same time the radio compass stations begin obtaining bearings on the ship.

Then Its Simple.

The operators in the five stations turn their compass wheels until each has an accurate bearing. These five readings are transmitted to the central station where, on a huge chart, the five readings are combined. Each reading will indicate a certain number of miles between the ship and the station that took the bearing. It is a relatively simple matter, then, to project these lines upon the chart until the five lines intersect. And that point of intersection is the location of the calling ship. Acknowledgment from the ship completes the operation.

Every American port is now being safeguarded by just such systems of radio compasses and central stations. Within a few months, at any point along the coast, mariners will be able to approach channels, reefs and shoal waters with an absolute assurance that they will not proceed too near, nor yet exercise such great caution as to throw them out of their course. And thus also is the danger attending fog banks eliminated.

Lieutenant Commander R. B. Coffman, U. S. N., is superintendent of the central station at 44 Whitehall street. Lieut. M. W. Arps, U. S. N., is in direct charge of the New York district.

Just a Quiet Smoke, But It Shocked Some.

Topeka, Kan. — Clouds of smoke coming from the women's waiting room at the Rock Island depot here caused the patrons of the room to make an investigation. Over in the corner, smoking a clay pipe peacefully, was an aged woman, all unconscious of the excitement she was causing. When the matron told her it was not the place to smoke, the aged woman calmly went outside the depot and completed her smoke. She said she came from the mountains of Kentucky and was on her way to Nebraska.

WRITES NOVEL OPERA

Mascagni's Latest Effort Is Revolutionary Step.

Has No Characters, but Represents Ideas for Which Men Have Striven.

Rome.—Pietro Mascagni, known to everyone as the composer of "Cavalleria Rusticana" and numerous other musical works, has written a new opera, "Il Piccolo Marat," which is characterized here as distinctly a revolutionary step in operatic works. It contains no personalities as characters in the story, but it substitutes for them symbolic representations of virtues and ideals similar to the American pageant.

"I expect to produce my new opera next winter in Rome," said Signor Mascagni to the Associated Press correspondent. "The theme is founded on the conflict of the ideas between the autocrat and the democrat, between oppression and freedom. The time of the opera, of course, is not limited to any one period. The opera is symbolic of many periods and would just as readily apply to the stirring times of the American Revolution as it would to the French revolution, or the Russian or the Bavarian."

"I have no characters in the production representing any particular personalities. There is no Napoleon, Metternich or Garibaldi. My characters represent the ideas for which men have endeavored to keep man in subjection. There is a character for justice, for truth, for freedom; and, on the other hand, for tyranny, for ignorance, for wrong. The plan in my new work has been to depict in song the evolution of man from a slave to a free man through the instrumentality of characters representing the abstract qualities for which man fought, and, on the contrary, the qualities he fought against."

SEEKS TO CUT LIVING COST

Freer Imports, Restricted Exports Considered by French Cabinet as Solution.

Paris.—The French government is considering the problem of the high cost of living and the cabinet took up the question at its meeting.

According to the Echo de Paris the government is considering the issuance of the decree opening the frontiers immediately for the import of necessary raw materials.

The Figaro says the government is discussing the prohibition of the export of certain foodstuffs, such as butter, eggs and cheese.

Other newspapers say the government will propose a law inflicting very severe penalties on food speculators.

The proposal to end martial law, which has been in effect since the beginning of the war, was discussed in the chamber of deputies.

FRANCE TO TEACH DOCTORS

New Body Will Work for Permanent Relations With United States.

Paris.—The Temps announces that an organization has been formed with the object of establishing permanent relations between American and French physicians and surgeons.

Several commissions have been appointed by the organization. One of these will have in charge the establishment of a course of teaching for American physicians visiting France, and another the founding of a bureau of information.

A third commission will examine into means of organizing an exchange of articles on medical and surgical subjects between the journals of the United States and France.

Our laws compel the parent to send their children to the common schools, which benefits the child educated only for a few short years. There is no civil law compelling the parent to send their children to Sunday School and church, but there is a law, greater than our law, which says to "Meet on the first day of the week" to worship.

We all violate this law, which means more to our future than even an education.

We want the parents to make it a law in their family, compelling every member to attend Sunday School and church services.

We are looking forward to the time when every family of the Christian Church will eventually come regular to its services, and bring your friends and neighbors for "Are you not your neighbor's or brother's keeper?"

Why the Churches Should Support the Boy Scouts

By James E. West,
(Chief Scout Executive, Boy Scouts of America)

"War is Over But Our Work is Not"

This is the cry of the Boy Scouts of America, the cry of a movement that now comprises almost 400,000 American boys and a hundred thousand leaders, the cry of a mighty army of organized boyhood that amazed the country by performing the Herculean task of selling $300,000,000 worth of Liberty Bonds, $50,000,000 worth of War Savings Stamps, locating 20,000,000 feet of walnut lumber for the War Department, collecting enough fruit pits to furnish the necessary chemicals for half a million gas-masks, distributing 30,000,000 pieces of government literature and serving as boyhood has never been known to serve in various capacities for the Y. M. C. A., the American Red Cross, the Knights of Columbus, the Jewish Welfare Board, the Salvation Army, the American Library Association and hundreds of other worthy agencies during the war.

Such a cry cannot pass unnoticed! And especially so in the light of the achievements enumerated, for surely when boys, "mere youngsters," can weld themselves as solidly into the history of our great triumph as the Scouts of America have done, their far-flung challenge to be of service during the days to come cannot pass unheeded!

It shall not!

Such is the determination of the big men of the country, who, under the leadership of the Hon. W. G. McAdoo, former Secretary of the Treasury, have banded themselves into a National Citizens' Committee to secure 1,000,000 associate members of the Boy Scouts of America, in keeping with the Proclamation issued by the President of the United States, calling upon the people to observe the period beginning June 8th and continuing to June 14th as Boy Scout Week.

The religious policy of the Scout Movement is consistent with the best of ecclesiastical principles. In all matters of faith the boy is directly under the guidance of his parent church. No religious teaching is thrust upon him from the outside.

No attempt is made to wean him away from his proper religious environment. Scouting turns the boy toward his church and home instead of drawing him out of it!

It is endorsed by every faith and creed. It is approved and generously supported by Catholic, Protestant and Jew alike. It is thoroughly American, thoroughly religious. It teaches boys to live—to live as God intended they should.

The philosophy of 'don'tism' has no place in the creed of Scouting. It is a movement of expression, not repression; expression through constructive imagination in the woods, under blue skies, on long, winding roads, out where nature is most beautiful, where the soul works as in the Temples of God, most purely.

One million associate members are to be recruited during Boy Scout Week. They are to come from the big cities and remote country hamlets alike, from every place where people congregate, largely from the most holy of such places—the church.

The need of such a membership, such financial auxiliary is imperative, for, as great as this movement is, it as yet embraces but one twenty-fifth of the eligible boyhood of the nation.

The boys can be secured by millions. They want Scouting. They plead for it! Their applications for scout membership pour into National Headquarters at the rate of a thousand a day!

But troops cannot be formed without red-blooded Godfearing men to serve as scoutmasters and assistants. This leadership cannot be obtained without the necessary funds for supervision, for extension.

And the most democratic of funds, the most American of funds, will come from a great interested associated membership, who give, not only their dollars, but their hearts and sympathies as well; who feel, in the giving, that in preparing these, on whom its future rests, the Nation itself will be prepared!

The Mysteries of Prayer

By REV. HOWARD W. POPE
Moody Bible Institute,
Chicago

TEXT—He hath attended to the voice of my prayer.—Psalm 66:19.

One of the greatest mysteries of prayer is its ability to produce conviction of sin.

Just what the philosophy of prayer is, or how prayer leads to conviction of sin, perhaps no human being can explain; but the teaching of the Bible seems to be that when any child of God has a strong desire that another person should be saved, and prays earnestly for it, the Holy Spirit produces in the heart of the one prayed for a feeling equally strong that he ought to be saved.

Not that God converts any one against his will, for conversion means the surrender of one's will, but that God in answer to believing prayer can put the sinner into such a hell of conviction that he will gladly accept Christ in order to get out.

Some years ago, in a town in Ohio, four women who had unsaved husbands agreed to meet once a week to pray for the conversion of these four men. After a few weeks one of them was saved and joined with the four women in praying for the other three men. A little later a second man surrendered and joined the circle, and later still a third. Nor did these women confine themselves merely to prayer, but by their daily life and example and testimony did all they could to help answer their own prayers. Finally on a certain day the four wives and three husbands agreed to meet to pray for the conversion of the fourth husband. When his wife returned from the meeting, she found her husband glad to see her. He said: "I know where you have been, and what you have been doing, and I am glad to tell you that you needn't pray for me any longer, for I have accepted Christ as my Savior."

Not only does prayer bring conviction of sin, remove difficulties, and soften prejudices; but often it opens the way for us to meet the very person whom we desire to help. I heard a minister say recently that he was urgently requested to interview and lead to Christ a lady who was entirely unknown to him. She did not attend his church, and he had no reasonable excuse for calling upon her. He began to pray that God would open the way for a meeting, and the very next Sunday at the close of the service a lady came up and introduced herself to him; and it proved to be the very one whom he was anxious to meet. She had come to his church for the first time, and entirely without the solicitation of any one.

When George Miller was in this country a friend of mine asked him how long he had ever prayed continuously for any object. Taking a little book from his pocket, he said: "When I was converted I was a wild boy in college. My conversion broke friendship between my roommate and myself, for he would have nothing to do with such a fanatic," he said. I wrote his name in this book, and promised God that I would pray for him each day until he was converted, or until I died. I prayed five years with no apparent result. Ten years went by with no change. I continued for fifteen years—twenty years, and still he was an unbeliever. I did not yet give him up, but prayed twenty-five years, each day mentioning his name at the throne of grace, and then came a letter saying: 'I have found the Savior.' Then," said Mr. Miller, "I checked out this petition as answered. In this same book I have names of others that I have prayed for, five, ten, and fifteen years, and scores of names against which there is a cross, showing that the requests have been granted."

Here, then, was a man who made a business of prayer, and who kept his accounts with the Lord in a business-like way. When he had a matter to present to God's attention, he first found a promise on which to base his appeal, always making sure if possible that it was according to God's will. Then he recorded his petition in a book, and watched and waited for the answer. Is it any wonder that this man's faith grew rapidly, and that he became the most notable, and possibly the most successful, praying man of modern times?

It is said that in battle it takes a hundred pounds of lead to kill a man, because ninety-nine pounds and fifteen ounces of it is wasted in wild firing that aims at nothing and hits no one. On the other hand the sharpshooter wastes no ammunition, but picks his man, and makes every bullet tell. So, if we would pray for fewer objects, more carefully selected, and then make a record of our prayers and watch for the answer, we should not waste so much breath, and we should obtain more results.

Cannot Claim All.

What is mine, even to my life, is hers I love; but the secret of my friend is not mine.—Sir P. Sidney.

WANTS UNITED STATES TO GIVE IT FREEDOM

Land Made Famous by Noah Picks Mandatory—Ever Hear of Nakhichevan?

Now add to the list of states that have asked the United States to be their mandatory—Nakhichevan.

"Never heard of Nakhichevan?" asks a bulletin from the National Geographic society. "Well, first consult Genesis viii, 4, for the district in question lies at the foot of Mount Ararat and the town of Nakhichevan contains the alleged graveyard of Noah. The builder of the ark, local tradition affirms, went down into the land that now seeks the wing of the United States and died of thirst in the parched plain after his ark had broken up on the snowy peak of the world's most famous mountain."

The bulletin continues with a description of the region by Maynard Owen Williams, who was the last American to carry on relief work in Armenia, to which land he went from Nakhichevan just before Christmas, 1917. Quoting Mr. Williams, the bulletin says:

Inhabited by Tatars.

"The Nakhichevan district, inhabited by Tatars, when peace comes will be bounded on the north by the Armenian district of Erivan. It is bounded on the south by the Arax river, which is the subject of many an Armenian song, and which here forms the boundary between Asiatic Russia and Persia. In the hills to the northeast is Shusha, a strong Armenian center, where the Armenians held out against a circle of foes in the summer of 1915.

"When Russia's power in the Caucasus declined and the soldiers flowed back from the former Russian front in Turkey through the Nakhichevan district the additional hatred between

Good Chickens Are Profitable Investment

Washington, D. C.—The story of Reuben Lowe, of North Shapleigh, Me., illustrates the possible profits from poultry keeping where careful management is practiced. During 1913 this poultryman, who devotes only part of his time to chicken raising, kept 250 birds, which paid him a profit over feed cost of more than $1,000, equivalent to $4 a bird. Included in this amount are the sales of a few eggs for hatching, about 30 cockerels sold for breeding purposes at $3.50 to $5 each, as well as the market eggs, which were disposed of in large quantity. Mr. Lowe keeps White Wyandottes of a strain that wins in the show ring when judged according to either the standard of perfection or a utility standard.

One pen of 20 pullets owned by this Maine poultry raiser produced eggs as follows: November, 1918, 413; December, 1918, 418; January, 1919, 380; February, 1919, 326; March, 1919, 456; a total of 1,993 eggs, averaging 99.65 eggs per bird in five months.

It pays to keep poultry of this kind, and growers everywhere are coming to realize that there is more money in keeping better fowl and feeding them properly balanced rations than in wasting time with inferior birds.

the Armenians of the Erivan district and the Mahometan Tatars broke out. This closed the carriage road to Tabriz and later closed the railway. At great risk several members of the American Committee for Armenian and Syrian Relief, with headquarters at Erivan, went to Tabriz and brought back several million rubles in a train that was so crowded with retreating Russian soldiers that one of the committee members, upholstered with hundreds of thousands of rubles, was forced to sleep on the roof of the car in a temperature near zero. Within a week the railway service was stopped by Armenian-Tatar fighting.

"The uprising of the Nakhichevan Tatars was ill timed. German propagandists had placarded the district with posters exhorting these Tatars, who are related to the Turks and are of the same religion, to rise against the Armenians, whom the retreating Russians had left to their own devices. This they did. But the Armenians had spent the winter in raising an army to take over the former Russian front, and about 25,000 of these volunteers were assembled in Erivan.

"The Tatars advanced along the railway (Tiflis to Tabriz) and met serious resistance first at Kamarylu, 80 miles from the city of Nakhichevan. There was some spirited fighting, and the Tatars were soon defeated, and at least one well was filled with their dead bodies. Women and children were not touched by the Armenians. By circling between Kamarylu and Mount Ararat along the wide plain of the Arax the Tatars reached the junction of Ulukhanlu and burned the railway station there, also cutting the Indo-European telegraph line, which joins Tiflis to the rest of the world. This necessitated the sending of Vice Consul Doolittle to Teheran in order to establish connection with Washington at a time when all Americans were being forced to leave Tiflis.

Tatar Villages Sacked.

"When I crossed the Igdir plain, where Armenians are starving today, these much persecuted people were having their innings and the smoke from a score of burning Tatar villages could be seen. Tatars with arms were allowed to live if they surrendered their guns, and women and children were not touched, but their villages were looted and burned by the Armenians. This was in March, 1919. All the Tatars retreated to the Nakhichevan district, where they formed a majority of the population. There they have remained. Hatred between them and the Armenians is strong, but, due to the greater strength of the Armenians, there are no atrocities.

"The whole problem is made difficult by the diversity of the population. In the mountain villages the Kurds are most numerous. A strong hand will be necessary to control these several tribes. The Kurds have been forced to be butchers by the Turks, who gave them guns as their only tools and who kept agriculture and education from them. Their condition is as bad as that of the Armenians, and when I crossed the Turkish-Russian boundary I saw scores of Kurds with only one garment and barefoot, at an altitude of 7,000 feet in March."

COUNTRY NEEDS APPLE TREES

Little Danger of a Surplus of Production If All of Us Should Get Busy.

"An apple a day keeps the doctor away."

With all things taken into consideration the apple stands at the head of all fruit lists.

It is the favorite fruit in the majority of homes. The apple is not only a productive crop, but from a commercial standpoint a good paying investment.

The war created such a big demand and necessity for immediate food that for the last four years the planting of all kinds of fruit has been neglected. Leading authorities state that in order to meet the requirements of the ever-expanding apple industry there must be planted 12,000,000 to 15,000,000 apple trees each year for the next ten years.

If you own a piece of ground, no matter how small or large, plant as much fruit as you can, especially apples. Remember if you have a small lot in a suburban town, say 50 by 150 feet, you could plant a dozen trees or more. If you own the lot and have not already built your house, start the trees now; the cost will be small and the value of your lot increased.

Farmers having plenty of acreage should plant apple trees in large quantities. It requires no special skill and very little attention to bring the young orchard to the bearing age.—Utica Globe.

HOW TREES BENEFIT STREETS

Ample Demonstrated That They Are of Practical Value in Prolonging Life of Roadway.

It has been demonstrated by those in charge of the work that aside from the purely ornamental value of trees along the highway, many practical benefits would result from their proper use. It is not generally realized that trees, by means of their shade during hot summer months, prolong the life of the roadway for many years, and road experts in general are heartily in favor of this means for road protection.

Due to the emergencies of war work it was found necessary to keep many of the highways which formerly had not been used for travel in winter open and free from drifting snows. That a demand will be made for keeping these roads open in the future is certain, and in place of many expensive and unsightly snow fences which now line more open stretches of highway it has been found that much of this work can be performed equally as well by the proper grouping of trees and shrubs along the open areas. More general planting of fruit and nut trees along the state highways will be recommended.

Need for Library Work.

Librarians in the war camps say that the need of libraries in all towns and neighborhoods in the United States will be more acutely felt henceforth than in the past. The men returned from the army, when scattered over the land, will, it is held, wish to continue their reading, and will be restless if denied the opportunity. Consequently, although it may be necessary to postpone the book distribution scheme tentatively decided upon by the American Library association, the plan should be kept well in view, subject only to such amplification as may be necessary to meet all the requirements of the case. The returned American soldier who likes to read should be afforded the opportunity always.

Boston Housing Plan.

Boston, even before the announcement of the federal government's reconstruction building program, had under way a housing plan aimed to demolish the city's slums and to relieve congestion as much as possible. The situation is complicated in that city by high fares on the street railway system, which tend to keep workers massed near the places where they are employed.

Several other cities were also contemplating housing programs on a considerable scale when the department of labor made its plan public.

Gardens Profitable This Year.

The home garden is likely to prove a profitable investment of effort this year as it has for the past several seasons, in the opinion of the United States department of agriculture. The experience of the past few years has proved that persons who have sufficient land and spare time, and who do their home gardening work intelligently and efficiently, find it profitable. The relatively high prices of practically all foodstuffs tend to increase the saving effected, but the home garden should be planned with a view to meeting the family needs rather than of producing crops for sale on the market.

Not the Thing.

Kitty was engaged and her girl friends were very interested.

"How did it feel," asked one, "while Billy was proposing to you?"

"Oh," laughed Kitty, twisting her lovely diamond ring, "two or three times I felt like supplying the words I knew he was groping for; but of course that wouldn't have been the thing to do at all, would it?"

CHAPTER V.

Having thus, in a word, revealed his ambition for a career above courts, marts and polling booths, George breathed more deeply than usual, and, turning his face from the lovely companion whom he had just made his confidant, gazed out at the dancers with an expression in which there was both sternness and a contempt for the squalid lives of the unyachted Midlanders before him. However, among them he marked his mother, and his somber grandeur relaxed momentarily; a more genial light came into his eyes.

Isabel was dancing with the queer-looking duck; and it was to be noted that the lively gentleman's gait was more sedate than it had been with Miss Fanny Minafer, but not less dexterous and authoritative. He saw George and the beautiful Lucy on the stairway and nodded to them. George waved his hand vaguely; he had a momentary return of that inexplicable uneasiness and resentment which had troubled him downstairs.

"How lovely your mother is!" Lucy said.

"I think she is," he agreed gently. "She's the gracefulest woman in that ballroom. How wonderfully they dance together!"

"Who?"

"Your mother and—the queer-looking duck," said Lucy. "I'm going to dance with him pretty soon."

"I don't care—so long as you don't give him one of the numbers that belong to me."

"I'll try to remember," she said, and thoughtfully lifted to her face the bouquet of violets and lilies, a gesture which George noted without approval.

"Look here! Who sent you those flowers you keep makin' such a fuss over?"

"He did."

"Who's he?"

"The queer-looking duck."

George feared no such rival; he laughed loudly. "I s'pose he's some old widower!" he said, the object thus described seeming ignominious enough to a person of eighteen, without additional characterization.

Lucy became serious at once. "Yes, he is a widower," she said. "I ought to have told you before; he's my father."

George stopped laughing abruptly. "Well, that's a horse on me. If I'd known he was your father of course I wouldn't have made fun of him. I'm sorry."

"Nobody could make fun of him," she said quietly.

"Why couldn't they?"

"It wouldn't make him funny; it would only make themselves silly."

Upon this George had a gleam of intelligence. "Well, I'm not going to make myself silly any more, then; I don't want to take chances like that with you. But I thought he was the Sharon girls' uncle. He came with them."

"Yes," she said; "I'm always late to everything; I wouldn't let them wait for me. We're visiting the Sharons."

"About time I knew that! You forget my being so fresh about your father, will you? Of course he's a distinguished-looking man, in a way."

Lucy was still serious. "In a way?" she repeated. "You mean, not in your way, don't you?"

George was perplexed. "How do you mean: not in my way?"

"People often say 'in a way' and 'rather' distinguished looking," or 'rather' so-and-so, or 'rather' anything, to show that they're superior, don't they. It's a kind of snob slang, I think. Of course people don't always say 'rather' or 'in a way' to be superior."

"I should say not! I use both of 'em a great deal myself," said George. "One thing I don't see, though: What's the use of a man being six feet three? Men that size can't handle themselves as well as a man about five feet eleven and a half can."

George was a straightforward soul, at least. "See here!" he said. "Are you engaged to anybody?"

"No."

Not wholly mollified, he shrugged his shoulders. "You seem to know a good many people! Do you live in New York?"

"No. We don't live anywhere."

"What do you mean: you don't live anywhere?"

"We've lived all over," she answered. "Papa used to live here in this town, but that was before I was born."

"What do you keep moving around so for? Is he a promoter?"

"No. He's an inventor."

"What's he invented?"

"Just lately," said Lucy, "he's been working on a new kind of horseless carriage."

"Well, I'm sorry for him," George said, in no unkindly spirit. "Those things are never going to amount to anything. People aren't going to spend their lives lying on their backs in the road and letting grease drip in their faces."

"Papa'd be so grateful," she returned, "if he could have your advice."

Instantly George's face became flushed. "I don't know that I've done anything to be insulted for!" he said. "I don't see that what I said was particularly fresh."

"No, indeed!"

"Then what do you—"

She laughed gayly. "I don't! And I don't mind your being such a lofty person at all. I think it's ever so interesting—but papa's a great man!"

"Is he?" George decided to be good-natured. "Well, let us hope so. I hope so, I'm sure."

Looking at him keenly, she saw that the magnificent youth was incredibly

"Are You Engaged to Anybody?"

sincere in this bit of graciousness. She shook her head in gentle wonder. "I'm just beginning to understand," she said.

"Understand what?"

"What it means to be a real Amberson in this town. Papa told me something about it before we came, but I see he didn't say half enough."

George superbly took this all for tribute. "Did your father say he knew the family before he left here?"

"Yes, I believe he was particularly a friend of your Uncle George; and he didn't say so, but I imagine he must have known your mother very well, too. He wasn't an inventor then; he was a young lawyer. The town was smaller in those days, and I believe he was quite well known."

"I dare say. I've no doubt the family are all very glad to see him back, especially if they used to have him at the house a good deal, as he told you."

"I don't think he meant to boast of it," she said. "He spoke quite calmly," she retorted, as her partner for the next dance arrived.

She took wing away on the breeze of the waltz, and George, having stared gloomily after her for a few moments, postponed filling an engagement, and strolled round the fluctuating outskirts of the dance to where his uncle, George Amberson, stood smilingly watching, under one of the rose-vine arches at the entrance to the room.

"Hello, young namesake," said the uncle. "Why lingers the laggard heel of the dancer? Haven't you got a partner?"

"She's sitting around waiting for me somewhere," said George. "See here: Who is this fellow Morgan that Aunt Fanny Minafer was dancing with a while ago?"

Amberson laughed. "He's a man with a pretty daughter, Georgie. Me-seemed you've been spending the evening noticing something of that sort—or do I err?"

"Never mind! What sort is he?"

"I think we'll have to give him a character, Georgie. He's an old friend; used to practice law here—perhaps he had more debts than cases, but he paid 'em all up before he left town. Your question is purely mercenary, I take it: you want to know his true worth before proceeding further with the daughter. I cannot inform you, though I notice signs of considerable prosperity in that becoming dress of hers. However, you never can tell. It is an age when every sacrifice is made for the young, and how your own poor mother managed to provide those genuine pearl studs for you out of her allowance from father I can't—"

"Oh, dry up!" said the nephew. "I understand this Morgan—"

"Mr. Eugene Morgan," his uncle suggested. "Politeness requires that the young should—"

"I guess the 'young' didn't know much about politeness in your day," George interrupted. "I understand that Mr. Eugene Morgan used to be a great friend of the family. The way he was dancing with Aunt Fanny—"

Amberson laughed. "I'm afraid your Aunt Fanny's heart was stirred by ancient recollections, Georgie."

"You meant she used to be silly about him?"

"She wasn't considered singular," said the uncle. "He was—he was popular. Could you bear a question?"

"What do you mean: could I bear—"

"I only wanted to ask: Do you take this same passionate interest in the parents of every girl you dance with? Perhaps it's a new fashion we old bachelors ought to take up. Is it the thing this year to—"

"Oh, go on!" said George, moving away. "I only wanted to know—"

He left the sentence unfinished, and crossed the room to where a girl sat waiting for his nobility to find time to fulfill his contract with her for this dance.

"Pardon me, please," he muttered, as she rose brightly to meet him; and she seemed pleased that he came at all. He danced with her perfunctorily, thinking the while of Mr. Eugene Morgan and his daughter. Strangely enough his thoughts dwelt more upon the father than the daughter, though George could not possibly have given a reason—even to himself—for this disturbing preponderance.

By a coincidence, though not an odd one, the thoughts and conversation of Mr. Eugene Morgan at this very time were concerned with George Amberson Minafer, rather casually, it is true. Mr. Morgan had retired to a room set apart for smoking, on the second floor, and had found a grizzled gentleman lounging in solitary possession.

"Gene Morgan!" this person exclaimed, rising with great heartiness. "I don't believe you know me!"

"Yes, I do, Fred Kinney!" Mr. Morgan returned with equal friendliness. "Your real face—the one I used to know—it's just underneath the one you're masquerading in tonight. You ought to have changed it more if you wanted a disguise."

"Twenty years!" said Mr. Kinney. "It makes some difference in faces, but more in behavior!"

"It does so!" his friend agreed with explosive emphasis.

They sat and smoked.

"However," Mr. Morgan remarked presently, "I still dance like an Indian. Don't you?"

"No. I leave that to my boy Fred. He does the dancing for the family."

"I suppose he's upstairs hard at it?"

"No, he's not here," Mr. Kinney glanced toward the open door and lowered his voice. "He wouldn't come. It seems that a couple of years or so ago he had a row with young George Minafer. Fred was president of a literary club they had, and he said this George Minafer got himself elected instead, in an overbearing sort of way. Fred's very bitter about his row with George Minafer. He says he'd rather burn his foot off than set it inside any Amberson house or any place else where young George is."

"Do people like young Minafer generally?"

"I don't know about 'generally.' I guess he gets plenty of toadying; but there's certainly a lot of people that are glad to express their opinions about him."

"What's the matter with him?"

"Too much Amberson, I suppose, for one thing. And for another, his mother just fell down and worshipped him from the day he was born. He thinks he's a little tin god on wheels—and honestly it makes some people weak and sick just to think about him! Yet that high-spirited, intelligent woman, Isabel Amberson, actually sits and worships him! You can hear it in her voice when she speaks to him or speaks of him. You can see it in her eyes when she looks at him. My Lord! What does she see when she looks at him?"

Morgan's odd expression of genial apprehension deepened whimsically. "She sees something that we don't see," he said.

"What does she see?"

"An angel."

Kinney laughed aloud. "Well, if she sees an angel when she looks at George Minafer she's a funnier woman than I thought she was!"

"Perhaps she is," said Morgan. "But that's what she sees."

"My Lord! It's easy to see you've only known him an hour or so. In that time have you looked at George and seen an angel?"

"No. All I saw was a remarkably good-looking fool-boy with the pride of Satan and a set of nice new drawing-room manners that he probably couldn't use more than half an hour at a time without busting."

"Then what—"

"Mothers are right," said Morgan. "Mothers see the angel in us because the angel is there. If it's shown to the mother the son has got an angel to show, hasn't he? When a son cuts somebody's throat, the mother only sees it's possible for a misguided angel to act like a devil—and she's entirely right about that!"

Kinney laughed and put his hand on his friend's shoulder. "I remember what a fellow you always were to argue," he said. "You mean George Minafer is as much of an angel as any murderer is, and that George's mother is always right?"

"I'm afraid she always has been," Morgan said lightly.

The friendly hand remained upon his shoulder. "She was wrong once, old fellow. At least, so it seemed to me."

"No," said Morgan, a little awkwardly. "No—"

Kinney relieved the slight embarrassment that had come upon both of them: he laughed again. "Wait till you know young George a little better," he said. "Something tells me you're going to change your mind about having an angel to show, if you see anything of him!"

"You mean beauty's in the eye of the beholder, and the angel is all in the eye of the mother. If you were a painter, Fred, you'd paint mothers with angels' eyes holding imps in their laps. Me, I'll stick to the old masters and the cherubs."

Mr. Kinney looked at him musingly. "Somebody's eyes must have been pretty angelic," he said, "if they've been persuading you that George Minafer is a cherub!"

"They are," said Morgan heartily. "They're more angelic than ever."

"I've got this dance with her."

"With whom?"

"With Isabel!"

The grizzled Mr. Kinney affected to rub his eyes. "It startles me, your jumping up like that to go and dance with Isabel Amberson! Twenty years seem to have passed—but have they? Tell me, have you danced with poor old Fanny, too, this evening?"

"Twice!"

"My Lord!" Kinney groaned half in earnest. "Old times starting all over again! My Lord!"

"Old times?" Morgan laughed gayly from the doorway. "Not a bit! There aren't any old times. When times are gone they're not old; they're dead! There aren't any times but new times!"

And he vanished in such a manner that he seemed already to have begun dancing.

Big Lot of Hay Fever Jokes

But Kentucky Man Says—"People Who Belong to Hay Fever Colony are Kidding Themselves."

Wouldn't Be Any Rose or Hay Fever if Simple Home Remedy Was Given a Chance.

"Yes, there's a real NINTY-NINE per cent effective remedy for hay or rose fever," frankly states a druggist in a prosperous Kentucky city.

"But I don't expect anyone to believe me, because the treatment is so easy and the cost not worth mentioning."

"The annual crop of hay-fever jokes would be mighty scarce if people would get an ounce of Mentholized Arcine and by just adding water that has been boiled make a pint of liquid that will prove a real help to all who suffer."

"Many of my hay-fever friends tell me that by starting to gargle and sniff or spray the nostrils a few times a day the expected severe attack often falls to appear and in cases where it does show up is very mild and does not annoy."

"The Better Class of Pharmacists" who dispense Mentholized Arcine say it will greatly modify any attack even when taken three or four days after hostilities begin.

Go to a real live druggist when you get ready to make a pint.

Save the Ten Cents.

Beginning June 10, a minimum price of fifteen cents for cash, and an additional ten cents when charged, will be made on all classified locals, cards of thanks, or other short locals.

If the local is ordered by telephone the money may be sent to the office the same day, before it is charged on our books, and the extra charge of ten cents will not be made.

We find the cost of charging these small items, making out bills and collecting them often amounts to more than the local itself. The extra ten cents that will be charged will partly compensate the office for this extra work and expense. But you can save it by paying cash when the local is ordered.

Exception will be made in the case of business firms with whom we have regular monthly accounts.

CONGRESSMAN BENHAM TO SPEND VACATION AT HOME

Fourth District Representative to Consult With People About Pending Legislation.

Washington, August 2—In accordance with the agreement reached by house leaders, the house recessed Friday until September 9.

The house has passed all the appropriation bills, for which purpose a special session was called, also the prohibition enforcement act, and it is thought that, while the senate is debating the league of nations question, the house can accomplish more by taking a recess, leaving on duty in Washington enough members of committees to carry on investigations already started, such as the investigation of the causes of the recent race riots, the Mexican situation, and the expenditures of the army and navy. Bills will be formulated looking to proper railway legislation.

It is the desire of many of the members to consult with "the folks back home" in regard to the many vastly important questions of reconstruction which will come before the house at the regular session next December.

Congressman John S. Benham, of the Fourth Indiana district, is particularly desirous of talking with returning soldiers in regard to the proposed soldiers' rural home settlement bill on which the public lands committee, of which he is a member, has just made a favorable report. This bill is of vital interest to soldiers who desire to secure farm homes.

With the bill reported out by the western members of the committee, Mr. Benham and a few of the eastern members are preparing a minority report which they believe offers a real aid to the returning soldiers instead of being only a reclamation measure masquerading as a soldiers' home bill.

The repeal of daylight saving, in which a large number of people are very much interested, has passed the house a second time and is now in the senate. It is the opinion of the majority that it will pass the senate, be vetoed again by the President, but will this time be passed over the veto.

Mr. Benham has had numerous requests for assistance in securing the release of boys from the service, and has been successful in obtaining discharges for many, but congress is now forcing the demobilization of the army and navy so rapidly that it is hoped all Hoosier boys in khaki may soon be back home again in Indiana.

The rain this week was of great benefit to the melon vines which were showing the affects of the drought. Some of the growers were fearful lest the drought would continue another week which would have resulted in many sunburned melons and a heavy loss to the growers.

SELLS INTEREST IN HOOVER FIRM

H. S. Propphet, Vice President of the F. E. Hoover Furniture Company Disposes of Stock.

WILL GO TO CONNERSVILLE

City to Lose Valuable Business Man and Resident as a Result of Deal Just Completed.

Announcement was made today that H. S. Propphet, vice-president of the Hoover Furniture Company, and manager of the local store, has disposed of his interest in the firm and has purchased half interest in a large furniture store at Connersville. Mr. Propphet expects to leave for Connersville to take over the management of his new interests as soon as the Hoover Company can send a manager here to take charge of the local store.

The announcement will come as a surprise to Mr. Propphet's many friends who will regret very much to learn that he is to leave the city. Mr. Propphet took over the management of the Hoover Company's business in this city four years ago and through his efforts the furniture store has built up an excellent business. The Hoover Company conducts a chain of stores in Indiana and Ohio and the Seymour store, under Mr. Propphet's management, has become one of their leaders.

Besides being an excellent business man, Mr. Propphet has been associated with several moves for a bigger and better Seymour and has worked ardently in getting several enterprises here that have benefited the city.

Mr. Propphet has formed a partnership with C. A. Seale in the furniture business at Connersville. They have purchased one of the largest stores in the state which at the present time is doing an excellent business. A new manager for the Hoover store is expected to arrive here within a few days and Mr. Propphet expects to leave for Connersville within the next two weeks.
